

Council

Trevor Brown

-
- a: Trevor Brown
-
- b: Retired broadcast TV engineer
-
- c: None
-
- d: Leeds Beckett University Sub-Aqua
-
- e: Training Officer 2004 to 2018
Diving Officer 2005 to current date
-
- f: None
-
- g: Advanced Diver Open water Instructor
-
- h: Studied Electronics and Television Engineering
25 years in ITV and 15 years and running my own TV production company.
Producing training video's for industry and live streaming of AGM's, both of which I believe would benefit BSAC.
My BSAC training enabled me to save a life by giving BLS (BSAC 2009 safety award)
I have also written an SDC film Making for Divers.
I have been a company director and spent 20+ years as the chairman of a national club, (voluntary role).
I have experience at both chairing a national club and am familiar with the responsibilities of a company director
-
- 1: BSAC council is about setting BSAC policies and how we manage our resources.
The resources need focusing at branch level, this is the only place we will reverse our membership decline. Its short sighted to expect to fill the membership shortfall by increasing the cost of training packs and subscriptions, this will only hasten our demise. What we need is more members and that will only come from how we deliver our services at branch level and what we charge for them.
The DFA programme is a good first step, but we need all our instructors on board to make it work and to this end it needs it to be F.O.C. for all instructors, we cannot expect our branch volunteer instructors to keep giving.
We need council to report back to members, legal expenses need explaining and controlling at council level. We need to know who voted for what, how else are we to chose if we should support a re-standing member. All this needs feeding back in full council minutes, we are members club after all.
We need a leaner keener BSAC, in a lot of ways the BSAC we had, not the BSAC we have now.